H.W. Grady High School Credit Recovery Program

What is credit recovery?

Credit Recovery is a teacherless model designed for students to complete with limited assistance from a local school monitor. It is an online course that allows students to earn credits for courses they previously took but failed. Students will take a pre-test and post-test for every unit and must master the content before moving on to the next unit. A final exam or End-Of-Course Test will be given for every course taken. There is no cost for these courses.

Who is eligible?

Any student who has previously taken a core course and was unsuccessful in earning credit is eligible. Since the credit recovery program will be offered in an online learning environment, participants in the credit recovery program should be self-motivated and independent learners who exhibit a strong personal commitment towards earning credit in an online environment.

How will students participate?

Students can participate in the computer lab at Grady High School or on any computer with internet access. However, all tests must be taken at GHS and be monitored by the credit recovery facilitator. The Credit Recovery lab is available to students during 4A and after school by appointment.
