

A photograph of four students sitting at desks in a classroom, viewed from behind. They are each using a computer monitor. The student on the far left has their hair in a bun. The student next to them has long dreadlocks. The student next to that is wearing a pink and white hoodie. The student on the far right is wearing a black hoodie. The background features a large red rectangular panel on a light blue wall. The floor is purple. A blue banner is overlaid on the bottom half of the image.

YES programs provide a second chance for at-risk youth and high school dropouts to be educated and contributing members of the workforce and community. YES encourages all program participants to build their skill level, self-esteem, and sense of community.

GED & Academic Tutorials

YES provides GED tutorial programs for at-risk youth and high school dropouts. Our program participants are between ages 16-24. YES partners with Fulton County Libraries and other community organizations to provide accessible community based programming. We currently operate five GED site locations.

YES practices individualized assessment and lesson planning. All GED classes provide a specialized, interactive and productive classroom environment by maintaining an instructor to student ratio of no more than 1:7. Each program participant is given a curriculum guide detailing their 3, 6, or 9 month graduation plan. To provide additional academic support, YES offers study hall twice a week.

Program participants receive transportation assistance, nutritional support as well as the opportunity to have official GED testing fees covered by YES

Project Healthy Grandparents
Tiffany McKesson

Phone: 404-413-1125
<http://phg.snhp.gsu.edu>

Service Hours: 8:30am 5:15pm MON-FRI

Our mission is to improve the quality of life for families in which grandparents are raising grandchildren in parent-absent homes. The overarching goal of the program is to strengthen grandparent-headed families by providing social work and health services, support groups, legal assistance referrals and improved access to community resources. Through these interventions, PHG seeks a reduction in the stress level of intergenerational families, and stabilization or improvement in their social, physical, and mental well-being.

Social Work Services:

Monthly home visits by the social worker include strength-based family assessment, goal setting, case management, information, advocacy, and referral services. Social workers coordinate services with project nurses and the early intervention staff.

Health Services:

Monthly home visit by a registered nurse includes a health assessment of the grandparent with a focus on blood pressure, weight, cholesterol, diabetes and vision screening. To link families to needed health resources, families are visited monthly by a registered nurse and/or receive appropriate referrals through the social worker. Grandchildren are screened for health issues and current immunization. Children aged five and younger are screened by project healthy Grandparents early intervention specialists and assessed for developmental delays at the Emory Neurodevelopment Exposure Clinic.

Grandparent Support Groups:

Each month the Grandparent Support Group meets on the Georgia State University Campus. The Group is a forum for mutual sharing encouragement. Sessions are facilitated by a masters-prepared social worker. Transportation is provided.

Parenting Education Classes:

Parenting Education Classes are provided throughout the year and meets on the Georgia State University campus. Parenting Education topics include behavioral management, parent child interaction, positive parenting strategies, and child development. Qualified professionals such as social workers and therapists conduct the classes. Transportation is provided.

Transportation

During the year of participation in Project Healthy Grandparents, transportation is provided to monthly grandparent meetings, appointments for developmental evaluations at the Emory Neurodevelopment Exposure Clinic and PHG sponsored special events.

Early Intervention Services:

Project Healthy Grandparents professional staff identify grandchildren ages 0-5 years who may have developmental delays due to prenatal exposure to drugs and/or alcohol. If delays are indicated, a referral is made to the Emory Neurodevelopment Exposure Clinic for a thorough medical, social psychological and educational evaluation. PHG then works with grandparents to implement the recommendations of the Emory Neurodevelopment Exposure Clinic. Referrals are made to appropriate public health, education and social service for young children, including but not limited to Babies Can't Wait, Preschool Special Education, Early Head Start/Head start, and Children's medical services.

Legal Services Referrals:

The Atlanta Legal Aid Society (ALAS) works with PHG to provide adoption and other legal services to clients. ALAS also refers clients to the private law firm of Kilpatrick Stockton when necessary.

Finding affordable housing near schools and public transportation hubs is one of the biggest challenges our families face. Making sure that Latino families are financially secure and able to stay in their homes is a priority for us. We offer one-on-one case management in the area of personal finance to prevent homelessness and ensure that Latino families are able to afford their monthly rent or mortgage. We offer rent assistance in cases of extreme need, as well as assistance to tenants who have complaints against their landlords. We also provide referrals to housing providers and other community organizations for those in need of shelter.

We partner with organizations such as Metro Fair Housing in cases involving housing discrimination and the Georgia Law Center for the Homeless, which represents families facing eviction.

The program's primary purpose is to support families of children with disabilities through information and open communication. Parent mentors are trained to advise, educate, and support parents of children with disabilities regarding the many issues surrounding special education services in APS schools.

Project GRANDD is a community-based support program for grandparents in the greater Metropolitan Atlanta area who are raising their grandchildren who have disabilities, chronic illness, or behavior or learning difficulties.

Project GRANDD provides group educational meetings, monthly support groups, home visits, individual case management and practical help where needed. Each year, with the support of caring donors, we collect school supplies, food and holiday gifts to help grandparents struggling on fixed incomes to raise a second family.
