THE DEPROSPERO

Foreword

We hope that you receive the enjoyment and pleasure out of this memoir that was ours in gathering it for you. We hope that in later years, you may look through the pages and be able to lift your head to the skies and give thanks for the wonderful privilege of gaining such a wide amount of social as well as educational knowledge at Washington High School that fitted you for a non-partisan, critical, world.

—The Editor.

THE DEPROSPERO

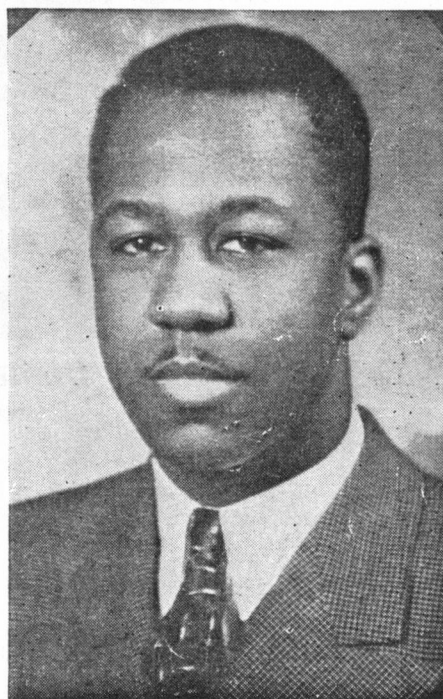

Dedication

With deepest gratitude we dedicate this expressive effort to the "Staff of our Class Life" Miss Susie M. Cunningham, sponsor, and yearbook consultant, Mr. Charles C. Gaines.

MISS SUSIE M. CUNNINGHAM

She's always ready — eager to say
"Now, here's what we must do"
In darkest times our guiding ray
She'll live in our hearts—"Big Sue."

MR. CHARLES C. GAINES

His soothing tones tell us to think—
Before we act—and to scorn the cheater
He's with us helping us "sling ink,"
He's our respected pal—"Cubic Centimeter".

THE DEPROSPERO

The "Deprospero"

In the murky dawn of a gray day, a soul-weary group came to a strong walled caravansary and asked admission. Hence, the kindly chief "Carava keeper" took them in and gladly gave them the food and peace they sought. The day was long and gray with a few intervals of light to break the monotony. Indeed, the "Day" was a span of three years. The food and peace received made weakened bodies into strong, stalwart trailblazers. The sojourn at the caravansary offered much diversion as well as constructive routine.

There were regular conferences with the "Caravakeepers" concerning the exploits and accomplishments of other caravans which passed. The caravansary was in communication with other caravansaries of the world and could give these interesting facts. Travelers like these were seeking admittance at all oasis able to take them. The conference furnished food for a great mental and spiritual growth.

Friendly contests of skill have been held in the spacious halls of the caravansary. The courageous athlete has thrilled them with his victory cry; the vibrant tones of oratory made them ring; the full bodied notes of song have helped to clear the clouds.

Now, the "Deprospero" named for the period of transition between economic depression and prosperity, is ready to leave on its renewed journey. An awakened nation looks to the rising sun which guides the "Deprosperites" on the shining—yet rough—road to their mecca of service. With staves in hand or cycles to ride and knapsacks full, they wend their way toward the sun.

The time-seasoned walls of the caravansary wonder what story they will tell of their travels and accomplishments when they meet, ten "Days" in the future. They prophesied much, but the old walls wonder—and hope—about this strangest of all caravans—the "Deprospero".

Alma Mater

Washington! O Washington!
Thy name shall be our guide,
For learning, fame, renown and gain,
Our gratitude abides.
As long as God's eternal love
Shall hold its portals wide,
For God and man in every land,
We'll live for Washington.

Washington! O Washington!
Thy name shall never die;
Our hearts are thine, thy fame shall shine,
O'er the earth and sea and sky.
Thy halls shall echo memories,
Thy precepts reign sublime;
Where'er we roam, where'er our home,
We'll live for Washington.

Dear Alma Mater keep our hearts
In dear old Washington,
A band of loving schoolmates, we
Will live for Washington.
"Vincit que se vincit,"
The lesson thou hast taught;
We trust the future may perfect,
The work thy hands have wrought.

Washington! O Washington!
March on to victory,
For honor bright 'gainst wrong for right,
Spread learning everywhere;
"Truth Purity," Thy white and blue,
With banner held unfurled;
Great deeds we'll dare;
Do each his share.
We'll die for Washington.

CHORUS

Washington! O Washington!
Thy name shall be our guide;
For God and man in every land,
We'll live for Washington.

THE DEPROSPERO Class History

September, 1931:

Anxious children patiently waiting before the massive structure of Booker T. Washington High School, scanned the building from end to end while their minds pondered what might prevail behind these towering walls. This group seemed to realize as it waited so patiently for someone to claim them, that a very delicate step in education was about to be taken and it was up to them to make the best of it When the classifications were read, many dear friends and classmates were separated. This group, though divided, could not be thwarted. As they filed into their respective classes, they didn't feel lonely. New friends were made and nobody was a stranger. Teacher and student met with courtesy, each respecting the rights of the other.

We will admit joyfully, that we were quite a bit wild, but this is characteristic of all new students in the junior class. If we should look back on the first years in high school, we can imagine ourselves racing from portable to building and from building to portable fearing that the greatest tragedy, in our opinion, would happen—lateness to class. Everybody became accustomed to the ways of the school and soon felt proud of being a part of such a progressive institution.

Each year as we received our promotion cards, we felt as though another mile stone had been passed in our striving to do a better grade of work. The years rolled by with routine events filling our schedule adequately.

1933-34:—

An epoch-making year this was in our rapidly growing lives. This year marked the inauguration of junior honor trips. The first junior honor trip included about thirty of us.

The success of the trip served as an ideal for the average students to such an extent that many of us were eligible for the trip to Chattanooga Tennessee, the next year. Many of us saw and were thrilled by our first sight of Lookout Mountain. Possibly the greatest and climaxing event of these junior years was graduation to the senior high school. Fruits of their labors were gathered by Nina Bailey and Emma Martin, who received highest and second highest honors, respectively. The class boasted a long list of honor students.

1934-'35-'35:—

These years were a preparatory period for our senior year in Washington High. Work was not difficult and much time was spent in extra-curricular activity. In the eleventh grade many of us held important positions in the student government. This was an introductory period to our multitude of senior activities.

1934-'35:—

The senior year has been the most interesting year of our high school career. Everyone has enjoyed the distinction of being a senior. The class has enjoyed the privilege of exercising the controlling voice in the student government. The class of '37 has given an administration that will go down in the history of the school as good, efficient government.

Another activity in which the class has taken a major interest and contributed to the success of is the Glee Club. The singing of Marguerite Weldon, Olivia Little, Mable Marigno, Dorothy Dixon, Lucile Ealey, Albert Pettis, Grady Sims and Leotis Hood has added to the sweetness of mixed group songs Dorothy Chaffin, Vivian Hunt, Fleming Williams, Ruth Smith and Isolyn Comer are promising prospects for future orators.

When the greatest event in our lives has been witnessed, we will feel that a great part of the task of education is over. Although we may leave Washington, our loyalty, love and the spirit she imbedded in our hearts will live forever wherever our "dream boats" take us We are not on the outside looking in; we are on the inside looking out wondering what is the best way to present to the future the best that we have.

—Emma Lynne Martin.

Class Song

THY STRENGTH MAKES US STRONG

By Lloyd Taylor

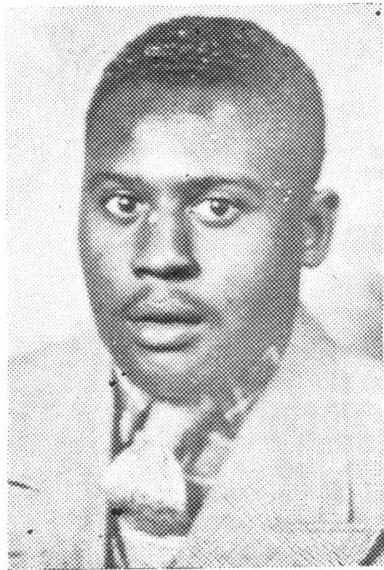

Learning sits in thy halls,
And keeps watch o'er thy walk,
Wisdom stands at each portal to guard;
As we pass day by day
Pleasure beckons to play
Or to stroll on thy velvet sward
While we mingle our task
With our pleasure, nor task
With our pleasure, nor ask
That our cup shall with blisses o'erflow
And through joy and through pain
May we never complain
As o'er life's future pathway we go,
Can it be we must leave you, your class room
and halls
Now just as the charms of your beauty enthalls.
We have come in sorrow and tears to say Farewell,
As a monk in hooded cowl from cloister-cell.
Farewell, Farewell, Farewell

Then today as hearts cast
A long glance down the past,
For the days that have flown our hearts yearn;
Forward the visions which rise,
While the tears dim our eyes
Tender memories of seniors will turn,
But we cannot retrace
Vanished steps, so we face
Toward the future with exultant song.
We rejoice in a share
By the guidance and care,
Thy strength makes us strong.

"Deprosperites" In Athletics

In their sojourn in the caravansary, the Deprospertis have taken much pride in their achievements in athletics. Due to the leadership of "Carava Coach" L. C. Baker, their success has been gratifying.

The most brilliant star, Henry ("Monk") Cooper, who was a varsity player for two years on the D. T. Howard High School football team, appeared at Washington High and made varsity half-back the first year in addition to an "all-prep" certificate. He added to the many laurels won at Howard, medals and certificates won in track competition.

Lucius ("Prexy") White, who plays a clean game of football, lived up to his reputation, as a good center and did much to make the '36 gridsters a champion team. The stars are backed by such players as these. In this class, Albert Whatley and James Lovett must be named because of their good playing and sportsmanship.

Since basketball is a "good ole light game", more of the lighter "Deprosperites" went in for it. Arthur Rogers, James Gilbert and Oscar Johnson formed the nucleus of a good team, but lost to a better combination in the Tuskegee tournament of '37. They proved their prowess in defeating such strong teams as Ballard Normal and Tuskegee High twice, but Avery High was the strongest team. Strong and capable substitute material was found in Percy "Playboy" Moore, Willie Owens and William ("Bill") Warner.

The most spectacular branch of athletics is track sports. It is here that many fleet footed "Deprosperites" distinguished themselves. The track laurels won by "Monk" Cooper have been mentioned. The "Mercury-tootsied" Hershell Holmes, won many honors in '36, and was nicknamed Jesse Owens, II' for his speed in the '37 Tuskegee Olympics. "Gene" Gaines' entrance in the Olympics was one of the main reasons why Washington High won second place track honors. When the stars couldn't participate, a good, all 'round athlete, Clifford Judge, was there to take their place.

The "lone star" girl athlete was Edith Arnold, a clean sportswoman in exhibition basketball games, and a singles tennis champion. She played a brilliant game and was crowned with the laurel wreath of victory in singles tennis in the '37 'Skegee Olympics.

Cooper, Holmes, Gilbert, Rogers and others extend the baton to Seals, Mitchell and Pharrow in hope that they will bring it to victory for "good ole Washington" in '38. Edith Arnold sets a good example for Gertrude North, Hester Brown, Leila Perry, Ernestine Rogers and Ira Johnson to follow.

As the "Deprosperites" gather the dust of greater track and field in their shoes, we know that they can span the distances between life's oases with clean sportsmanship and the Washington spirit!

—Robert Gervin and James Gilbert.

Washington Breaks Through

Mrs. L. D. Shivery

Many educational opportunities come to the students of small private institutions that publicly supported ones don't have a chance to vie for. In recent years, students in the upper levels of their classes have had a chance to compete for scholarships to the best centers of learning in America, but usually they were small private institutions. Five years ago, the University of Chicago started giving competitive examinations for the entrance of southern students into college work. Booker Washington High School was not included in this list of eligibles Like a "still small voice crying in the wilderness," a faculty member, whose extensive preparation for her life's work took her from Atlanta to Columbia University, tried to gain entrance for Washington High in these contests. A personal triumph for her was the introduction of a course in Negro Literature into the Atlanta public school curriculum. When the "small voice" rose to this crescendo, Mr. E. C. Miller, registrar of Chicago University, heard and invited us to participate in the examinations. We owe this distinct honor to Mrs. L. D. Shivery, head of the Washington High School English department.

On April 17, 1937, thirty-three senior high school students took examinations in English, Mathematics, Languages and Sciences. Those students in the order of their eligibility, were Albert Pettis, Nina Bailey, Jeanette Berry, Catherine Brown, Johnnie Mae Hines, Vivian Hunt, Emma Martin, Evelyn Seace, Walter Banks, Paralee Clarke, Isolyn Comer, Pearlie Craft, Louise Hines, Olivia Little, Roselle Wimbish, Evelyn Wright, Frances Latten, Elizabeth Patton, Emory Little, Frances Maddox, Ruth Smith, Gertrude Dodson, Frederick Leigh, Thomas S. Putman, Blanche Smith, Roswell Sutton, Lillie Mae Thornton, Marguerite Weldon, Alberta Wilson, Bessie Appleby, Sterling Gill, Mable Lee, and Ruth Miner. They presented themselves eagerly and hopefully that they may make a creditable showing.

Washington High "broke through" an educational barrier and proved herself worthy. The "still small voice" still calls for academic freedom and equality of opportunity.

The committee in charge of coaching for the examination was composed of Miss H. E. Buchanan, Mr. F. E. Mapp, Dr. X. L. Neal, Miss V. M. Gibson, Miss S. M. Cunningham, Mr. R. H. Jefferson and Mr. C. C. Gaines. Each coached those eligibles taking examinations in his respective field.

Journey's End

Washington, dear Washington, lead on
We follow, not with fears,
For gladness breaks like morning
Where'er thy name appears,
Thy cross is lifted o'er us
We journey in its light;
Lead on, dear Washington, with all thy might.

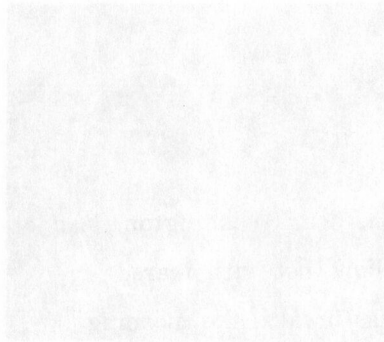

—Robert Horton.

In our hearts, as we part, comes a sad awakening start
That you've given us knowledge and you've showed us the light.
You have made us victorious in all our flights.
So good-bye to you, Washington, and each tear that we shed
Will make us remember that our lives you have led.

—Naomi Slade.
