What is the Affordable Connectivity Program?

The Affordable Connectivity Program (ACP) is a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) benefit program that helps ensure that households can afford the technology they need for work, school, healthcare, and more. Qualifying households are limited to one monthly service credit and one device discount. Credits are non-transferable and limited to one per household. If you are already using the ACP program and/or have already claimed the one-time device discount, you are still able to purchase at the regular, non-ACP PCs for People prices.

Eligibility Requirements:

To shop with PCs for People, you must be an adult currently participating in a government-based assistance program or have a qualifying household income (less than 200% of federal poverty guidelines or 60% of area median income). Examples of eligibility documents include a food support letter, a medical assistance card, a national school lunch program letter, and more. Please make sure your documents have your name and are dated within the last year and/or show current coverage More eligibility information can be found at www.pcsforpeople.org/eligibility.*
