Ladies and Gentlemen, Students of Booker T. Washington High School,

Welcome back! The first day of school is here, and I couldn't be more thrilled to see every one of you. This year is no ordinary year—it's a monumental milestone in our history. We are celebrating the 100th anniversary, the centennial celebration of Booker T. Washington High School, the oldest African American high school in the state of Georgia! Let's give ourselves a round of applause for being part of this incredible legacy!

For a century, this institution has stood as a beacon of hope, excellence, and resilience. We walk the same halls that countless students, educators, and community leaders have traversed, including our most famous alumnus, Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. Just imagine, you are part of a lineage that has shaped history and continues to influence the future.

Here at Booker T. Washington High School, we are intentional about student success, school safety, and teacher effectiveness. Our mission is to empower you with the knowledge, skills, and character needed to excel in an ever-changing world. We have an unwavering commitment to providing a safe and supportive environment where your dreams can take flight.

As we embark on this new academic year, I want you to remember that each one of you is an essential part of our school's rich tapestry. Your achievements, your struggles, your growth—all contribute to the legacy we are celebrating this year. We are here to support you every step of the way, from the classroom to the athletic field, and beyond.

To our dedicated teachers and staff, thank you for your relentless effort and commitment to excellence. Your passion and effectiveness are the driving forces behind our students' success. Together, we create an environment where learning is not only encouraged but celebrated.

Students, I challenge you to make the most of this year. Dive into your studies with enthusiasm, participate in activities with zeal, and support one another with kindness and respect. Let's make this centennial year not just a look back at our illustrious past, but a leap forward into an even brighter future.

Thank you for your energy, your spirit, and your commitment to making Booker T. Washington High School a place of pride and excellence. Let's make history together, just as those before us have done.

Here's to a fantastic year ahead! Welcome back, and let's make this 100th year the best one yet!

Sincerely,

Wm. C. Wade
